

Annabel Cooley / Youth Content Contributor / Women's Issues Advocate

Annabel Cooley is an underclassman at Concord Academy, an independent school in Massachusetts. She is dedicated to spreading awareness about eating disorders, and facilitating the acknowledgement of body stereotypes while encouraging body neutrality.

She has received much praise for her writing, including publishing in multiple poetry books and a first place award for an essay contest in fifth grade. When she is not writing, one might find her performing theater, baking, playing soccer or guitar, or spending time with animals.
