

September 9th, 2014

To Whom It May Concern:

It is my pleasure to provide this letter of recommendation for performers Ron Jones and Larry Tish of the Black Jew Dialogues. Ron and Larry performed their show and conducted two workshops for Juniata College on August 26th. As performers they were engaging, energetic, and hysterically funny. They talked about the differences in people in a way that the students could relate to and in a way that was entertaining.

We had several hiccups while preparing for their arrival and despite these issues Ron and Larry maintained a positive attitude and did not let these minor details affect their final presentations.

Their workshops and the show they put on all encouraged students to have respect for others, be inclusive, and use their leadership positions on campus to foster these traits in others. College students are a difficult group to reach with sensitive topics and I believe they did a fantastic job in conveying the importance of acceptance and inclusion.

I most certainly would like to bring the two of them back to campus next year because I think that what they do is valuable to the development of college students. I thank you for taking the time to read this recommendation and if you have any further questions or concerns please do not hesitate to email me. Thank you.

Sincerely,

Lilah Marie Flores
Resident Director of Leshler Hall and Inbound/First Year Programs Coordinator
Juniata College
1700 Moore Street
Huntingdon, PA 16652
floresl@juniata.edu
814-641-3308